

SERIOUS ACCIDENT OCCURS WHILE HUNTING

Orla L. Britton Wounded by Discharge of Gun Carried by Companion.

HIS CONDITION IS CRITICAL

Injured Man Carried to Jetersville for Medical Aid—His Two Brothers Were in Hunting Party With Other Richmond Men.

Orla L. Britton, a painter, living at 802 Mosby Street, was seriously, if not fatally, injured on a hunting trip yesterday, when Robert A. Pones's gun was accidentally discharged, and the entire load struck Britton near the top of the right side of the head.

Britton, with Pones, who lives at 613 North Twenty-second Street; his two brothers, W. J. Britton, 715 North Twenty-second Street; L. A. Britton, 510 North Thirty-fourth Street, and John Dishman, who lives with Pones, went to Jetersville yesterday morning for a Thanksgiving hunting trip. They were about five miles from town and had been in the field several hours when the accident happened.

Mrs. W. J. Britton last night told a representative of The Times-Dispatch the details of the accident. She said that her husband, with his brothers and friends, were hunting deer in the hills, when the trigger of Pones's gun caught on the twig of a bush. Orla Britton was in advance of the others, and when the gun exploded the entire load struck him, but he did not drop to the ground unconscious.

TAKEN TO JETERSVILLE FOR MEDICAL AID

His brothers and friends picked up the bleeding man and carried him over a mile to the nearest house, where a man was secured, but the driver, with all possible haste to Jetersville. There the services of a surgeon were secured. But little hope was expressed for Britton's recovery by the physician, and he refused to allow the injured man to be moved to Richmond last night.

Both of the Britton brothers were so overcome by the accident that they fainted shortly after they had reached the physician's house. They were brought back to Richmond. Each of them was confined to his bed last night from the shock, and neither could be seen. They left their brother in the hands of the physician, who was early this morning had received no notification of his death.

Orla Britton is the father of seven children. His eldest daughter, Jessie, was married to a young man named Slater. It is said that, although they had planned a wedding trip through the North, the young bride refused to leave Richmond at the last minute. She was in the city when the news of her father's accident was brought in.

Britton's wife is living, as are also the following children: Mrs. Slater, Jessie, Margaret, and Florence Britton. Eddie Britton and three small children. His two brothers are living in this city, as are also his four sisters: Mrs. Norman Napier, Mrs. Edson Roberts, Mrs. Mary Woody and Miss Hattie Britton.

AMUSEMENTS

Colonial-Grange Scott Company in "The College Widow."

Lyric-Popular vaudeville, matinee and night. "The Gay Widows," burlesque.

Paylows Reviewed Elsewhere.

One of Lyric's Best Hits.

Admission to the theatre to the doors at each of the three performances given at the Lyric yesterday enjoyed one of the best seasons of the current season. While every act on the bill drew liberal applause and the frequency of encores protected each of the three performances far beyond the usual time, two features of the show came in for extraordinary demonstrations of approval.

One of these principal favorites is the musical comedy, "The College Widow." The harp solos, the several instrumental duets and the singing of the two clever musicians, and the exceptional good. The big crowd seemed never to tire of the pair, who were costumed as Neapolitan street musicians. The act went "big."

The second distinct hit was scored by Ajax, a young man, who was assisted by Miss Emily. He had a magnificent specimen of physical development, opened with a series of poses in the light, and then the play of his marvelous muscular development. Then followed an amazing demonstration, among other things, the strong man, armed with a large chain, secured by tugging at it with his teeth. He set the very pump Mike. Emily in a chair, lifted the chain, and actually waited three minutes. Swinging by his legs from a frame, he juggled with a dumb-bell, which he said weighed 100 pounds, and not content with this, he set Mike. Emily upon the huge dumb-bell, bearing the combined weight in his teeth.

Ray, Raymond and Florence Bain led the crowd laughing fifteen minutes with their amusing sketch, "Lacked Out." Marie Kind Scott played with songs and patter, and a novel animal act, which appeared strongly to the women and children, was presented by Juliette and her troupe of dog actors. The sagacious animals perform many amusing tricks, and the Hearst News review, with a fresh series of war pictures, is interesting, as usual.

FLOODS DAIRY BARN AND STABLES DESTROYED

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

LYNCHBURG, Va., November 26.—The dairy barn and horse stables on the farm of Congressman H. D. Flood, in Appomattox County, were destroyed last night, the loss running well into the thousands of dollars. The fire is thought to have been started by one of the stable attendants dropping a match or cigarette stub. The fire started early in the evening, when Congressman Flood was entertaining a number of friends at a dinner party, and it was due to the work of these friends that all of the fine Holstein dairy herd and horses were taken out of the stables without the loss of one.

BRITISH STEAMER CLEARS WITH CARGO OF HORSES

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., November 26.—With 1,000 horses for use by the British and French governments, the British steamer Ruchburn cleared here today for French ports. After dropping out into the stream, however, boiler trouble was discovered, delaying her until to-morrow morning.

The Shenandoah is now being fitted up with stalls to carry about 1,000 horses to the allies, and the steamer Raphael, it was announced today, is expected to reach here to-morrow for a cargo of horses. It was stated, though not officially, that 40,000 horses are under contract to be shipped from this port, Baltimore and New Orleans, within the next few weeks.

GOVERNOR PROCLAIMS CATTLE QUARANTINE

Five Cases of Foot and Mouth Disease Found in Loudoun County.

EVERY PRECAUTION TAKEN

State Veterinarian Fernyough Says There Is No Reason for Apprehension—Diseased Cattle Came Into State From Maryland.

Because of the discovery of five cases of foot and mouth disease in a herd of steers at Waterford, Loudoun County, Governor Stuart yesterday afternoon issued a proclamation declaring a quarantine against the county of Loudoun. No cattle, sheep, other ruminants or swine, can be moved from that county until the quarantine order is rescinded.

Dr. J. G. Fernyough, State Veterinarian, discussing the entry into Virginia of the diseased cattle, said last night over the long distance telephone from Burkeville to a reporter for The Times-Dispatch:

"There is no occasion for alarm among cattle owners in this State. We have every reason to believe that the disease has been effectively checked, if not already exterminated, in Loudoun. The measures we are now taking are chiefly precautionary."

CAME INTO STATE

"The five infected steers came with a herd of cattle from Hagerstown, Md. The herd was shipped into the State twenty-three days ago. From the hour of their entry these cattle were under the observation of the Virginia authorities and officers of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry. The foot and mouth disease ordinarily manifests itself in cattle in five days; that is, the unmistakable symptoms appear in the infected cattle. In these cases, however, the disease did not make itself apparent until twenty-three days had elapsed. That is because the animals were infected with a very mild type of the disease."

"The herd containing the infected steers consisted of thirty head. Of these, seventeen head went to Waterford and the remainder to Peony Springs, Wise County. The disease has not manifested itself in the cattle at Peony Springs. Only the five head of the thirteen at Waterford are affected by the disease. In this case, and we do not believe another case will develop. Therefore we see no occasion for alarm."

Dr. Fernyough explained that the method of the State and Federal authorities in handling such cases is to slaughter the infected cattle immediately. This has been done in the Waterford cases. The cattle to be killed were appraised at their actual value, and the owners are paid for them, the State bearing one-half of the indemnity and the United States Bureau of Animal Industry the remaining half. It will not be necessary to extend the quarantine to any other part of Virginia, because of the five cases of foot and mouth disease in Loudoun.

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

An official statement was issued by State Veterinarian Fernyough last night, which reads as follows:

"An outbreak of foot and mouth disease was discovered in the County of Loudoun on the twenty-fifth by representatives of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry and the State."

"Since some steers had been sent into said County of Loudoun from Maryland, twenty-three days ago, before the quarantine was established against foot and mouth disease—said cattle have been under the watch of the State and Federal Veterinarians. However, not until the above date was there any positive symptoms of the disease."

"The case in question is at Waterford, Loudoun County, on the premises of George W. Hough, according to the report received at the office of the State Veterinarian."

"Said County of Loudoun will at once be placed under quarantine by the State and Federal authorities."

"All infected and exposed animals to be killed under the supervision of the United States Bureau, assisted by the State."

"Every precaution will be taken to prevent the spread of the disease."

"The co-operation of the public is thus most respectfully requested in maintaining the quarantine rules and regulations, and all persons, except stragglers, are requested to keep away from the infected premises."

"It is not thought now by the United States Bureau or the State authorities that the disease will spread in the said County of Loudoun, and the State is in carrying out the prescribed rules and regulations as given in the United States Bureau."

QUARANTINE AGAINST LOUDOUN

Following is the quarantine proclamation issued by the Governor:

"Whereas, it has been determined by the State Veterinarian of Virginia, acting in connection with the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, that a contagious, communicable disease, known as foot and mouth disease, exists in live stock in the County of Loudoun, in this State, and

"Whereas, by authority conferred by section 1599 of the Code of Virginia, as amended by paragraph 4 of an act of the General Assembly, approved March 12, 1905, authorizing the Virginia State Live Stock Sanitary Board to establish and maintain such quarantine against all such contagious diseases as said board may deem necessary to protect the domestic animals of this State, said board has issued an order establishing a quarantine against the County of Loudoun, and has accordingly given instructions to Dr. J. G. Fernyough, State Veterinarian, to enforce same."

"Now, therefore, I, H. C. Stuart, Governor of Virginia, do hereby proclaim a quarantine against the County of Loudoun, in the State of Virginia, do direct that no cattle, sheep, other ruminants, or swine, shall be moved out of said County of Loudoun to any point in this State, and

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the lesser seal of the Commonwealth to be affixed at the Capitol, in Richmond, this, the 26th day of November, in the year of our Lord, 1914, and of the Commonwealth, the one hundred and thirty-ninth."

(Signed) "H. C. STUART, Governor."

"By the Governor: (Signed) B. O. JAMES, Secretary of the Commonwealth."

Sprague His Ankles.

Dr. H. D. Strawbridge, of Chase City, Va., shipped on the pavement near Eighth and Grace Streets yesterday afternoon and severely sprained his ankle. He was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where he is now resting comfortably last night.

Boutchery—Perry.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., November 26.—Warner Boutchery, of Fairmount, and Miss Gertrude Perry, daughter of Mrs. Carrie Perry, of this city, were married here last night at the home of the bride's mother, Rev. W. S. Jackson performing the ceremony.

GREAT THROG CROWDS STREETS AND HOTELS

Excellent Order is Maintained and No Arrest of Importance is Made.

All the hotels were filled last night with the holiday seekers, and hundreds attended theatres other than the Academy of Music, in which there was room limited only to box parties and the players.

It was a "big night." It was a big night without disorder, it was a night in which the extra police put out by Major Werner had little to do. There were only a few mildly convivial parties, only a few alumni meetings, and only a few gatherings of students who had not the fortune of being numbered among their more distinguished brethren. The colors were mingled together. Students of North Carolina and of the University of Virginia mingled in the happy fellowship of the streets. It was possible only among student bodies.

Mixed with the holiday-making population of the city, the visitors made one of the biggest crowds which have ever been seen on the streets of Richmond. Those who could not go to the theatres because all the seats were sold out, mingled together in hotel lobbies. The Jefferson, the Richmond and Murphy's Hotel lobbies were filled with happy students, some wearing the colors of Virginia, others wearing the colors of North Carolina. Which part of the North Carolinians was more than made up by the friendliness of the Virginians. That spirit of fellowship which goes out to the man who gamely loses. It was particularly noticeable that there was no animosity, that the losers were as game in defeat as they had been hopeful of victory. All except the semi-drunken crowd, which was another football game to-day.

It is said that there were more visiting people in Richmond yesterday than there have been since the day that Roosevelt and Taft attracted crowds from the country. Broad Street was literally massed with people yesterday afternoon and last night. There were only two directions. One mass went west, the other east. When they turned, the one crowd passing the other. All were alive with the spirit of the day. There were no lackings there were smiles, smiles of thanksgiving, perhaps, but, anyway, smiles.

Smith—Turnbull.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

LAWRENCEVILLE, Va., November 26.—A wedding of great interest was celebrated in St. Andrew's Episcopal Church on Wednesday afternoon at 6 o'clock, when Miss Mary Turnbull became the bride of Charles Lewis Smith, of La Grange, N. She was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Sidney S. Lee, of North Carolina. Her attendants were: Miss Mary Drewry Turnbull, maid of honor; Misses Lizzie, Pattie Prince, Evelyn and Gertrude Turnbull. The ushers were David M. Resis, Hunter Y. Lee, Charles Turnbull and Edward M. Redwine. Little Miss Mary Elizabeth Turnbull and Master Robert Williams held the ribbons, and the ring was carried by Master Robert Turnbull, III. Mrs. A. P. Gray, Jr., played the marches.

Floyd told Justice Crutchfield that his engine had been working badly and that it was necessary for him to drive rather fast in order to keep going. He said that he did not know that he was making the time which the policeman alleged.
